According to Kirby, it has always been that way.

So whatever cute little acronym you want to put on it, you are part of the problem, not the solution and this same conversation has taken place 300 times before by folks far less "challenged" socially as you are.

Here's the cycle: New guys come in, become "friends" and start arguing with the older ones, rack up posts on tpoics we've seen 400 times before(honestly, who friggin cares), start arguing, make each other mad, someone leaves, new guys come in, the last batch start whining about how it "just isn't the same" and how the new guys shouldn't post stuff they've already seen 400 times.

You aren't special, you missed the golden days of ren, the betas, the Westwood employees who used to come here, decent clan matches, great rivalries, and the drama that was ACK.

Soon, you'll create some flaming goodbye post and "punish" us by leaving. So let's skip the drama.

Just go.

hahaha Kirby! You are a real piece of work did I tell you that before? I never claimed I was special did I? LOL man you keep craping on yourself the more you post.

Some things you should know about me:

-I don't give half a asshat for number of posts
-I am here because I am
-I play the game because I am not physically handicapped not to
-I can post here on "who cares" topics because I can

There is nothing I feel like I have missed because I have was not here to "feel" those things beforehand.

And no lol, I am not going to "punish" you by creating a flaming good bye post! LOL @ your ignorance of putting everyone in the same children category. If I want to go, I will just stop posting. You keep assuming that I actually enjoy my "e-personality" that I have here lol. I am here because sub-consciencly I come here and I respond to posts I see here (who gives a damn if anyone cares or not?).

"Just go"? haha, you are mad. Let me punish you by staying?
