I am currently making some Single Player Mission walkthroughs for the interested people. The videos do not contain any dialogs, but they do contain music. I did not record any audio and sometimes I might go in the wrong direction, because this is the first time ever I've played single player missions...

All videos will be uploaded at video.google.com. When that's completed all links will be posted here and on renegadewiki.com.

haha, that's one less cheater we have to worry about then.

This seems like a complete waste of time to me and my money says you won't do it anyway.

I think it would be better in text form, i mean, who's going to download loads of videos for something they've already done?

Hint, not everyone is going to listen to that crap in the background. Nor is using custom models and skins good since if you're doing this for beginners they wouldn't have skins etc.

Talk over the mic, tell the audience what you're doing specifically, and include the stuff from the actual game.
