how many times have you gone "LOL RUSH LIMBAUGH" now?

And, this guy's a bit of a douche, but at the same time, he's sorta right. But it's not just the far right that act like teenagers. The so-called environmentalists look over other issues in favor of retardedly ridiculous things that have no practical value, and spend all their fucking time worrying about said things.

Both.

This is in no way related to rush limbaugh. Look at the site for God's sake. Does that look like a link to rushlimbaugh.com ? No. I don't like the fact that Americans are considered teenagers by these people. We care about what we care about, not what Stephen Chu wants us to care about. I also don't like the fact that it stereotypes teenagers as careless, hurtful people as most of the ones I know don't fit that sterotype.

McPolitics are just too retarded to entertain. You've got every dipshit hick like muaddib under the impression that they have to contribute their uninformed opinions to every single issue that's currently being politicized. Then the leftist fringe has to find a rebuttal and we end up with predictions on how the US or the world is going to stop existing in 10 years and a debate on who's a Washington elitist and how nobody's going to take away our guns and freedomz. All of these idiots never seem to realize that their bitching and moaning has little to no effect on the mostly centrist policies that result...all they did was fill the media's pockets.

In regards to your first comment regarding Rush Limbaugh, the Wall Street Journal editorial pages aren't much better.

Futhermore, Chu is right, tbh. We have been shit when it comes to conserving energy and combatting global warming(Though China and India have been far worse). This is mostly the fault of the previous administration for ignoring the issue (even denying that the issue even exists..) and instead worrying about the interests of the oil companies. However, the blame also lies with average Americans who refuse to make simple changes in their lifestyle to combat the problem.

Muad Dib15 wrote on Wed, 23 September 2009 21:24I also don't like the fact that it stereotypes teenagers as careless, hurtful people as most of the ones I know don't fit that stereotype.

Most of you replying have completely misunderstood the point of the thread. He never said he was offended by the topic that the guy is talking about... what's offensive is that he stereotypes teenagers. Regardless of what he is talking about, he is still stereotyping, which is resentful.

He could be talking about proof that Luna isn't made of cheese, but if he said something negative and related it to how teenagers act, it would be equally as offensive. This thread isn't about politics about the guy in question being an asshat.

Wait, are you implying that America's politicians are capable of reasonably rational decisions that benefit the majority?

Didn't you get the memo that non-reactionary, common-sense based thinking is not allowed on the internet?
