Not sure on models.
Wish they would make it easier to allow certain skins and models.

We tried telling him this many moons ago, but I believe it all fell on deaf ears since I was supporting any argument that favored tightening up the design. Also, worthy of note is that you can get more LOL for your buck by camping on top of the mountain with Sakuras while the Stealth Tanks come through. There is almost nowhere to hide in the GDI base, and absolutely no cover whatsoever. Say what you want about Fjord, but you can't tell me that the entire terrain is a barren wasteland that allows some faggot to snipe you without any fear of retaliation.

I actually prefer to use the hills next to the Tiberium Field, yeah there's the faggy fog but it takes around 2 minutes to reach most GDI buildings when a GDI guy spawns in another building so it's easy to snipe whore with a Sakura and Buggy there.

The only thing that matters is what the Jelly community thinks. If you don't like the maps on rotation, go play on st0rm. Oh wait, you can't!

PS Arctic was only my 2nd map, so shit is to be expected.

I've been creating a "lower polygon" map for Jelly server during the last week, and it's starting to come together now. I won't be adding anything more then they did in the stock renegade maps, so there will be a few props, and trees/plants but nothing overboard.
Its at around 5k polygons right now, and shouldn't be any higher then 7500 when its finished. I hope to see this server being marathon as there is no other way to play renegade

This is all WIP, some things aren't textured, other things like water is temporary. I want the gameplay to be really focused towards rushes, and also geared towards giving infantry many sniper points looking into each base. Yea everything is close together, but that will make the gameplay interesting.

Nice and simple, with no stupid balance changes. I like it. At that rate you won't have to brown nose to get it added to their rotation.

I just wonder if the AGT and Ob will fire too far into the field to launch an attack, much like seaside canyon...

You're seriously trying to argue that having flat open land with no cover is good design? Have you played any game besides Renegade in the past 10 years? Maybe you should. You would see terrain that isn't barren. Terrain that gives soldiers the ability to hide without requiring a building to hide in, or a vehicle to hide behind. Terrain that gives you more options than being seen and shot from hundreds of meters away.

Your idea of "strange vehicle, structure and infantry" modifications is, well, strange. You are aware that this is a C&C game, and that the changes I developed are - get this - based on Command & Conquer? Do you have a problem with Command & Conquer?

crazfulla wrote on Wed, 07 March 2012 15:48

That was true only in the early versions. FjordsTR fixed that particular issue. I'm going to go out on a limb and say that you didn't bother to try that, though.

I think I know exactly what you mean, big wide open maps can suck. But I haven't named any of those in my previous post. I didn't mention maps like Mars, GrasslandAssault or Country Meadow.

Now I'm not sure if you were referring to the map Terrace in the first place, but that map has a more various terrain model than those three maps combined together.

cmatt42 wrote on Thu, 08 March 2012 14:52At first, I saw this thread and was happy with a map pack 4.0 server, but then I saw it was marathon. No, thank you.

Seems I can't make everyone happy.

Should give it a try anyway. I doubt with small player count and a lot of those maps that there will be super long games.

Apparently great minds think alike, I created that same thing in 2006 without ever seeing it in those servers.

It didn't play well, and it was ugly as sin. Both problems would have eventually been fixed had they not given up so early.

Of course I did. This was the same day as the first flying toilet video.

Now, if only ccfan would freakin' restore my FTP portion at black-cell.net, I wouldn't have to find one of my hundreds of already-uploaded videos to put on YouTube when someone wants to see it again... Also, that reminds me, looks like the BC IRC Quotes page is still up.

Can I just throw out that having actually played a few maps in this server, the "marathon" part is pretty much fucking irrelevant because of a simple fact - what fan map is actually balanced enough that you can get the same stalemates you'll get on every game of Field? Exactly. Hardly any last longer than ten minutes. So I don't really see the whole issue with it being a marathon.

The best reason I have heard from Jelly for why it's marathon is because it gives new players a chance to explore the map. Sure some players are very fast explorers but not everyone...so this way if a game is already on, slow explorers have a time to sneak around.

Besides, it really doesn't matter as these games are fast and end quickly unless the teams are evenly matched. With playercounts kinda low, I wish for but doubt the count will go as high as Jelly Mappack from 2008. I hope I am wrong on this! So at this point it makes no difference if it's marathon or timed.

Exactly. Hardly any last longer than ten minutes. So I don't really see the whole issue with it being a marathon.

If everything were Field, this game would have died years ago from the population leaving due to sheer boredom. Field is not really "balanced", it's just artificially bottlenecked with a choke point on both sides of the terrain. There is nothing particularly brilliant about its design, nothing special to its development. It is a very basic piece of terrain with mostly extraneous "tunnels" which only become particularly useful once the base defenses are down.

I'm not sure where you're getting the logic that a long match makes for a great game, or that a stalemate makes for balance. Fjords, for example, usually lasted over an hour. I've seen it run for four hours before with 40 people on each side. I've seen Field end in five minutes. Long games on a consistent basis due to terrain restrictions forcing you to drive through a bottleneck with major base defenses attacking you and defenders turtling up for hours on end are the end result of a game whose levels weren't designed properly.

I don't have a clue what you're talking about. I didn't say a "long match makes for a great game," I was saying there ARE no long matches in small fanmap games because basekilling happens within minutes of match start.

That isn't always the fault of the design. It usually has a lot more to do with the fact that people aren't as familiar with new work as they are with stuff they've played for, you know, an average of two years or more.

Marathon only gets frustrating in the main Jelly Marathon server when it is full. The default maps are way too small for that many players. The mappack server obviously doesn't get the same numbers, and the maps are often bigger, so its much better that way.

Also, many fanmaps are quite well balanced. The thing is you have to play more than just a few to find out which.
