xProxy, is the exact clone of WOLproxy in terms of functionality except it's written in C++ for performance reason (I think, can't remember). I never expect my source codes would expose in front of rene drama stage at anytime but here is the day!

No readme, no documentation, no support, unable to compile anymore because this is no longer in development. Version 0.2.2 is attached and has been running for 2 years without crash therefore considered stable.

More to come.

Enjoy!

LMFAO. <3

raven and I already have it though. I haven't used it in years. I don't know what moron wastes their time crashing servers anymore in the last 2-3 years to even have use for it lol.

Embrace yourself, extinction is upon us!

nice release! I hope is more stable than WOLProxy, but if is open source, I can fix it myself

The time it's being created is to handle the instability of XWIS, which is years ago last time but who knows in the future...
