Nah - I think you should fall and die. It's the price you pay for being a twink and buying a flashy attack chopper that really isn't worth anything besides close air support. The chopper that should be able to take one shot is the Chinook. Anyone willing to fly an unarmed chopper (kinda crappy - there SHOULD be at least a door mounted gun or something - as there is on LZ choppers in EVERY military) into a defended base full of infantry deserves a little more life.
