Beg my pardon about the double reply, but another "Is it possible" question has come to mind.

Is it possible to write a script that loads an image or a W3D from a external source.

like on startup download image.tga from http://www.blah.com/sources/ and save it to your ren data folder where the scripts.dll is located and then the next time you go on the map it will have that image in your data folder and will overide the one included in the mix.

Preety sure its not possible, but there again... Your a smart guy!
