vloktbokySo, what is this? Another scare tactic for trying to force us to use your software? Or just another member of BHS that say they want to help but end up showing the community their true colors. This "company" has some serious etiquette problems it needs to adjust.

I mean, come on. You say you are out to stop all cheaters, yet you only care if they cheat on servers using your software? Do your arms of love stop when they finish wrapping around those servers that have chosen to use your software?

We provide you an anti-cheat solution. If you decline to USE the solution, then what else are we supposed to do? How can we care about servers that don't run RenGuard? You have a perfectly attainable solution to cheating available to you free of charge... if you don't use it, then we simply can't help you. I mean, I care about the servers running this game, but we can't help you with a cheater problem if you refuse to use the solution we have created for your problem. I thought this was common sense.

I agree it was really fucking stupid what he did, and I already told him that, but ACK isn't involved in anything BHS except sitting in the private channel talking about the game. He doesn't make any decisions, nor does he develop any of our products, nor does he speak for BHS (only Blazer, mac, and myself do that)... so what difference does this really make?

Either way, mac, Blazer, and I are discussing what we want to do about this.
