
Subject: Canadians who want to join the USA and form a US of N.A

Posted by icedog90 on Mon, 27 Sep 2004 21:03:15 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

IncognitoThis I don't agree with. There would be nothing wrong with sharing the same money system. Instead of a product being $2.99 USD and $3.99 CAN, why can't it be adjusted to $2.99 period? I suggest we'd keep it American because of the higher level of difficulty it would be for Americans to shift for a few reasons (not because I'm American). 1. More population in America, meaning more people would have to adjust. 2. Americans are stubborn and are not easily moved to change. 3. Larger circulation of US currency throughout the world.

I wouldn't really have a problem with that. What I really meant to say was that I didn't like how Aprime is now acting positive because he thought about sharing the money, since America's money system is better. That sort of represents jealousy, or maybe I'm wrong and was just over reacting.
