oh come on ffs, those games were worth it. I have like 10 N64 games and they're all good, I mean, if you liked the game it was worth your money at the time right? that's like saying you spent 50p on bread 6 months ago, now you have regurgitated the bread and it is worth crap. anyway they aren't worthless, you can still sell n64 games as well as the console just shop around. see if you can find a shop called "gamestation". it might only be UK based but they sell old consoles like mega-drives, n64s, etc, trade and sell games, as well as sell new releases.
