Subject: i got atacked from n00bstories.com? lol
Posted by GetSm0keD on Fri, 11 Feb 2005 03:28:08 GMT

so thats why its always so damn HOT in FLa.. gawd.. Funkin N00bstories..

i found this on a diff forum

Symantec has admitted that a serious vulnerability exists in the way its scanning engine handles Ultimate Packer for Executables.

According to a ZDNet article, this means the scanner would execute the malicious program instead of catching it.

Tim Hartman, senior technical director for Symantec Asia Pacific, said: "A vulnerability is not a vulnerability till somebody discovers it but because this is now known, somebody could craft an e-mail, mass mailer or a virus that takes advantage of it. It affects our firewalls, antispam, all the retail products and the enterprise products as well"

Symantec recommends you immediately patch your software.

http://www.symantec.com/techsupp/cgi-bin/menu.cgi?URL=%2Fdownloads%2Findex.html

last 2 days norton was gettin mad updates..