The best avatars are the ones that people make the self's. I always thought they were supposed to be representation of the person posting, and so should be original. What's the point in posting something you copied?

I made both of mine (the bloke in the av is not my work but the rain and the background are), although i'm going to change my sig, load it in to flashmx and come up with a couple of animation's to do with ren.

On another note... Why the fuck was this thread started in the first place!
