Subject: Tweaking Windows XP
Posted by IRON FART on Tue, 19 Apr 2005 02:21:50 GMT

icedog90I wouldn't blame XP for going slow on 256mb of memory. Even when I had 512mb it was a little bad. I'm at 1gb right now and it has greatly improved.

Which video card are you getting? Just so you know, even if a video card is 128mb, it can still easily suck. I'd like to know what chipset you're going for.
Yeah, 256 is sort of the bare minimum for XP.

Microsoft say that it will run on a 233MHz computer with 64MB of Ram, but realistically, that won't work.