IRON FARTI don't like it. It is obvious that the lightning has been streched for each box, and it is obvious how you made the cloud effect, which doesn't look all that good.

DO NOT try designing a website using a billion effects (Bevel, Difference clouds, change of Hue, etc.)

Keep it very simple. Simplicity is your friend. RESERVE those effects to one element in the page (such as the logo or symbol if you have one). This will draw attention to that one element and make more of a statement instead of making it a shocking mess.

Simplify it and make more use of color.
You can ignore my comment.

Glyde: I was talking about more of like GetSm0ked and others that have given their suggestions in other threads.
