I'm working on making a very simple template for my website, because let's face it, all the important sites have a banner and a navigation bar and nothing fancy.

By the way, does anyone know a way to make a TD element take up the rest of the space that the other TD's aren't taking up? Like, a fill element or something...

Nevermind, using my 1337 skills I put table tags inside table tags and made a ugly template I think it looks okay, though no where near as cool as my current one...
