Subject: The final one.
Posted by glyde51 on Mon, 23 May 2005 01:23:37 GMT

I understand him, he wants to do better. I couldn't do too well when I wanted to make a site either, I used premade templates and such and they usually had bad text styles and stuff....

Deadfive, you need to learn how to make your site. I mean, in a nutshell, you need to learn how to use Photoshop to make a template. I use it for all my templates now, plus the little amount of HTML and CSS I know.

You can look at http://www.good-tutorials.com/tutorials/5 to see how to make templates in Photoshop, I'm sure that you seem dedicated to your site enough to learn to use it.

Don't try to make anything elaborate. I tried to, but now I'm aiming for a simpler effect like this: http://arctic.trielite.net/htmlproject/ compared to my current template.

Unless you want to be a Web Development site, having an elaboratly decorated site isn't the best. You just need it to be presentable.

And maybe only post here when you add to your content