So if I go take the most important person's Passwords & IP from this Renegade community. And I post it on UC public were everyone can see it, do whatever they want. If then a immature member on UC takes the passwords, logs in to this forum and Deletes posts, places bans, pretending like hes the big important person and miss abusing his/her position. Then even posting a post under his name that is really ridiculous.

You would just be OK with the fact we should just leave it all behind without taking action? I don't think so.
