All they need to do is give gay marriage its own word, its own definition and make it the same exact thing as a normal marriage except say it is only between two men or two women.

They need to come up with a new word that isn't marriage and people won't care.

They also need to get two things straight. The government needs to run the civil union part. If two people want a civil union the government shouldn't be able to stop them. But a marriage is with the church. If they church won't do it, thats too bad. Nothing they can do about it.
