Posted by danpaul88 on Fri, 08 Jul 2005 21:57:41 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

the new ip address will have been given by the DHCP since you are using a home network i suggest you just set the computers on the network manually instead of using DHCP, its easier when forwarding ports etc..

What has probably happened is the new ip assigned does not fall in the range allowed for you home network by the firewall or router...