this topic has gone confusing but are you talking about the windows firewall that is built in or firewall software you bought? if you bought a firewall then the serial number is probably on the back page of the documentation or behind the CD(s) in the case, usually on a label.
For the windows built in firewall, you don't need a serial and it will never ask for one