How did I miss him? Otherworld is a class song. Did he compose To Zanarkand aswell? That's a brilliant peice of piano music.

I believe he was licensed and commissioned to do the entire Final Fantasy Fanchise. It's pretty amazing with that man can do with a VST and a synthesizer.

Someone worth mentioning of course is Jeremy Robson of Kingston Ontario. Uematsu's works are amazing templates to remixers like him. The general MIDI Uematsu has been limited to for production reasons (I can only assume) doesn't give justice to the possibilities that can be generated. Jeremy Robson is one of the best I can think of who can take something as memorable as the "Fifth Tier" of the Dancing Mad symphonic and turn out something one cannot discern from genuine orchestration.

Jeremy Robson's main site.

Additional songs from him not listed on his site (includes Kefka's Adagio)

Good stuff, highly recommended.
