Doesn't always work since there are people like me who have signitures turned off... Not because I might not be interested in something in someones signiture... but because I am tired of the pull page signitures that a few people seemed to have gotten out of hand with.

Providing a link to something, even if it's your own work, is not bad. It's when you constantly spam about it over and over through several topics is when it is not good.