I take it was newly installed to replace a previous sound card?

First, check the bios to make sure any possible onboard sound is turned off, they conflict with addon sound cards 99% of the time.

Second, delete the sound card from the device manager (after you've installed it using device manager) and reboot then install normally, that should fix your problem. This time, install JUST the drivers, don't add any of the extra utilities crap that Sound Blaster puts on the driver disc.
