Why would you give me a link to the cyber world to tell me to live in the real world?

Quote: Talking on the Internet is just like talking to a person, oh wait it is talking to a person, but a person who is usually far away from you.

Except for the part where the person has total anonymity and doesn't have to worry about issues like accuracy or impartiality...or annoying things like facts...and can instead rely almost totally on emotional statements that sound good but really have almost no logical basis at all.

If you think pointing out the logical flaws in your alarmist mindset is crap, you've got a lot of maturing to do yourself.
