Not only was he restricted to only requesting money to be added to the account (ie. requesting payments from customers) but the checking accounts were old and closed. They were verified in the past and PayPal knows no different - so he couldnt possibly get money out of them.

Not to mention, I dont think bank account -> paypal transfers are instant. I believe they take 2-3 business days. Paypal -> PayPal is instant ... and so is using a PayPal debit card on the internet (deducts from your paypal account balance).
