Not an accusation, just making a point. But just because someone's done something good doesn't mean there have been on the occasion things that were/are bad. I mean what's your point? Just because someone's done some things right doesn't make ANYONE exempt from things they did that were bad. Isn't it good to give criticism? Perhaps we should all blindly accept everything one person says. Wouldn't that be fun/a disaster?