However if both team mines the harv path than it could be fair again, but on a map in particular, you can follow it from two directions and so you have to waste twice as much mines Which is generally fine because it's a map that you don't have to worry about mining building entrances save for one, however the team already has an advantage so it really isn't the end of the world.

C&C City_Flying.mix seems to have equal entrances via harvestors, although, the AGT would probably shoot at you and make noise and cause an investigation compaired to the Obelisk. So really it is actually unfair because the Obolisk would only power up but not shoot a you and give away your position.

But nod has sbhs, and gdi doesn't.
