

---

Subject: Re: GRRRRRRRRRRR

Posted by cheesesoda on Thu, 21 Dec 2006 15:12:54 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

fI00d3dlol skin color does not make someone comit a crime, and that is not what I was saying at all. Some people just read into it way too much.

Then why were you arguing with me and xptek? Also, as xptek said, don't put it in a list of reasons why you dislike blacks if you know it's not because of their skin color...

fI00d3dBut like I did say, all men are NOT created equally. Some are stronger, some are more more intelligent, some are less susceptible to illnesses, etc. So when talking about discrimination I feel its fair to say that the argument of "we're all created equal" is complete bullshit -- because many white folks deserve jobs or entrace to university that have been filled by "Affirmative Action" racism.

Umm... we're all equally human. We all deserve the basic civil rights. Anybody who think that every person is equally strong, equally intelligent is sadly mistaken. However, we are all created the same as humans. Just because someone is is black or white, dumb or smart doesn't make them any more or any less of a human. Note: I'm not saying that you think they're any less human...

fI00d3dAs for the AIDS comment? I'm pretty sure that epidemic wasn't started by a white man or anyone of "european decent" if you catch my meaning. If you don't catch my meaning ... then I suggest you research history and U.S. statistics a little more.

What about the Bubonic Plague? Were white people a disgrace then because of it? Should they have been discriminated against?

How about SARS? How should we view Chinese people?

---