I think it's odd that Arabs own party stores, but I'm not really bothered by it.

In America, from what I've seen, it's only really blacks that have a problem with working. Everybody else wants to work and live happily... well, most do.

The Mexicans I have worked with are probably some of the hardest working people I have seen. But the problem I have is..the companies hire them with very low wages...and because they are undocumented they only pay them out of pocket with no taxes...that's what is pissing me off. They send their kids to public schools to get an education that none of them pay for which overloads the school systems(I have a sister who works for an inner city elementary school in Tulsa which over the past couple of years has seen a huge increase in Mexican immigrant's children). A driver's license?...forget about it...insurance?...you wish. Because of that if you only have liability insurance(which is mandatory in Oklahoma) you are fucked if you are hit by an illegal immigrant driver. Like I said before they have very admirable qualities of hard work and family but there has to be something done about the way they are absorbed into our society. Unless something is done it will in my opinion lead to utter chaos.
