Like you Aprime, I never heard of TreyD. However, in reading post of all those who did know him, he obvioulsy was a good guy. Further, in reading all the post, the guy had family who obvioulsy may read these post. If you indeed are respectful person, you would be best served to watch what you say in here for that reason.

Even though you say you respect him, your statements may be interpeted differently. Especially by those who really were close to the man. So, my suggestion to you is maybe pay more attention to what you write. This really isnt a time to be flaming people for trying to respect some one they were close to. What if Trey's wife reads the stuff you wrote - I mean think a bit.

Empathy to those who were close to TreyD.
