Try windows remote desktop... If you want something easy to use then that's it. No messing around with downloading clients because it comes installed on almost all windows PC's.

I use it to do my school work. I connect to my home computer from school and since its setup as a private web developement server its on all the time and I can easily setup projects to download over to the school when they're done. Or I got my FTP for larger stuff.