Why don't you people ever fucking Google simple questions? I mean, it's not hard to find what you're looking for if you put forth a little effort.

Calm Down! I thought I would get a faster answer this way. Plus most of the time it doesn't say "Supports dual monitors" on the description of it.
This is a forum. It usually takes people several minutes to respond. It takes a matter of seconds to search for something on a search engine.

If this was on an IRC channel, I could understand the "I thought I would get a faster answer this way", but not on some damn message boards.

Also, if everybody just always answered people politely, people like you would never learn to take initiative.
