Subject: Re: smoking ban in uk...
Posted by cheesesoda on Tue, 29 May 2007 20:14:33 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

warranto wrote on Tue, 29 May 2007 15:52True, but to act against that by allowing innately bad substances to be tolerated does nothing to promote health.

And before you bring up that fast food, alcohol, etc. stuff being bad for you, I said INNATELY bad substances. There is no benefit for smoking as even one cigarette begins the process of poor health whereas fast food and alcohol are not innately bad for you. Only in excess do they become that way (hence the reason trans fat is currently in the process of being eliminated).
Who says the government has to be partial smoking, either? I mean, I want Gay Marriage to be legal. That doesn't mean I'm promoting Homosexuality, but outrightly banning it hasn't solved anything... Allowing for Gay Marriage to be legal doesn't mean that the government is against heterosexual marriages, either. Just supporting the right of the people to love and marry who they wish, whether or not it's what the politicians support for their own, personal morals.