Haha, typical American homophobe.

Nope. I personally have no problem with gays. If you and your buddy want to suck each other off and slam each other in the ass that is fine with me as long as you are consenting adults. By the way, your buddy is the one who uses the word "gay" as an insult...why don't you call him a homophobe?

Also, AdAware smells.
AVG Antispyware free edition is quite good, but there is no best. I find them all to have some crappy problem with them.

I and everyone I know who uses AdAware have never had a problem with it. I've never used AVG but it probably does a decent job as well. Using either of them would keep someone from doing something dumb like claiming that random sites have ads on them when they do not.
