
Subject: Re: Real ID Act and the Threat of a Police State
Posted by cheesesoda on Tue, 10 Jul 2007 14:30:02 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

warranto wrote on Tue, 10 July 2007 09:58And? Who cares if they know where you are at any given point.

Unless you're suggesting you will end up being somewhere you shouldn't be?
Do you leave the door open when you go to the bathroom? Do you like it when people are listening in to your conversations? Do you want someone to just watch you wherever you go?

I don't know about you, but I don't like the idea of my privacy being invaded whether or not I'm doing something illegal. Even more so than that, I hate the idea of being tracked for the simple fact that it's the principle of my freedoms being taken from me.

I don't do anything wrong when I go to the bathroom. Afterall, it is natural to have to go to the bathroom, yet I still shut the door. Even if my phone conversation is innocent chit-chat, I still don't care for people to be listening over my shoulder. I may just be going from home to work and vice versa, but I still wouldn't want someone to tail me.

What is it with you people and the screwed-up idea that I'm implying I want to do something illegal because I want my life to be... MY life?

Also, I own the government. I should know what they're doing at all times, not the government watching me.
