CarrierII wrote on Fri, 13 July 2007 20:59Turn the detail off and went for Nvidea to release Vista ready, working drivers.
Nah, seeing as all of my games run at about half the speed they do in XP (and yes, I've tried all the tricks like disabling SuperFetch, although it annoys me that these things have to be done in the first place) I'll just stick with an operating system that I actually don't dislike (XP). The second I get some proper free time I'm going to install Ubuntu x64 off the LiveCDs I just got posted () and then marvel at how the 3d effects are somehow much better than anything Windows can offer*.

* Better, but utterly pointless, and that's why I love them!