Probably one of two things.

1. It would have compressed everything on the HDD instead of just the little it did before you stopped it. If it was compressing everything and it finished, the next happens.

2. It would have compresssed them more than it did now, and things would be slower, becuase a heavily compressed file takes more to uncompress and use than a lightly compresssed file.