Although Canada isn't in Iraq, our troops are one of the largest forces keeping Afghanistan from total collapse. America and Britain are doing their part, but the rest of our NATO 'allies' are being a bunch of table-scrap pilfering grab-asses and not giving us the help we sorely need. If America were to re-instate a draft, it would help our chances in that country to keep it from collapsing.

However, this will never go through. Rich Republican parents will be pretty pissed off at the possibility that their trust-fund babies could end up in a foreign country doing service. Regular voters will simply put the Democrats in power, and keep them there for years.

If this ever does go through, there'll likely be some draft-dodgers headed up this way.
