Supporting your troops is COMPLETELY different than supporting the war. Also, I'm not going to keep supporting someone who makes mistakes simply because they're in a position of power. If you sit back, blindly following someone, you don't get the best results.

I'm not saying the presidency is easy, and anybody who can achieve that has my respect, but Bush would be better off as one of your drinking buddies than our President. I supported him for as long as I could, but he's stretched my patience way too thin.
