

---

Subject: Re: The draft!

Posted by cheesesoda on Thu, 16 Aug 2007 22:16:31 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

puddle_splasher wrote on Thu, 16 August 2007 16:58cheesesoda wrote on Wed, 15 August 2007 15:28Spoony wrote on Wed, 15 August 2007 16:02puddle_splasher wrote on Wed, 15 August 2007 04:53YOU CAN'T STOP WHAT THE GOVERNMENT WANTS. YOU VOTED THEM IN AND WILL DO AS YOUR TOLD!!
ddermmm

governments are employees of the people, not the other way around It's mentality like his that makes government as powerful as it is. He just continues to further my accusation of him being a tool.

The Government may well be the employee. But they all have their own political agenda ahead of them. They will tell you what they think you want to hear and then stick the knife into your back as you turn away.

During the 4 year term they do what they want and its only after that time that we really get the chance to force them out. Very rarely will any Government leaders ideas and concepts totally agree with any individual.

But the big one with the younger generation is WAR. Its not wrong to fear war, but I believe its wrong not to fight for freedom. If that means going to war because your Government, that you elected, gets us to that position, whereby our peace and liberty has to be sacrificed in order to retain our peace, then so be it.

We will march.

As for being a tool. I beg to differ. I cast my vote but in a democratic country whereby the majority wins, I dont throw a strop and say "Im not going to war and I may be unfit to do so".

Keeping the peace sometimes means war, that seems like a simple concept to me.
Do you ever ask yourself why I would ever dare to call you an idiot? Rest assured, it's not because your opinion differs from mine. It's because every point I make seems to fly over your head.

Explain to me how you're not a tool when you continually say that there's no point in discussing this because the government will do as it pleases. You act as if we shouldn't question the government because they're the government and we can't stop them. What's the point in a democratic government system if we can't stop the government? The simple fact of the matter is that we can. As I said before, it's your attitude that lets the government take in all the power it wants.

---