Wow, I figured there would be so much more racism in this thread.. I wanted to expand my opinion of racism... but now I can't because everyone is going along with my definition. Way to go!

EDIT:
No.. never mind, it started out nice, but then I saw page 2

My opinion on racism. Your a racist no matter what. It doesn't matter if your discriminatory, negative, or even positive, your a racist no matter what.

Here is an example. (Racist example)

Your in New York City. You see two parked Taxi cabs waiting for people to climb in. Each of these Taxi Cabs are advertising something about themselves.

The first Taxi cab says "I don't allow black people to ride in my cab"

Alright, so most of you, if not all of you, stop here. This is your definition of racism. Well your wrong, it goes on.

The second Taxi cab says "I allow every race in my cab"
Saying something like this is JUST AS RACIST AS THE FIRST CAB!

It doesn't matter if that which is said is negative or positive, because racism doesn't specify. It is assorting people by a certain race. Good or bad, does it make a difference?

IMO, any form of racism is unneeded. So that means, going back to the example above, I would slash both taxi cab's tires because I dislike racists.

>End avoidance of racism by own logic
