
Subject: Re: Guess what?

Posted by Drkpwn3r on Wed, 31 Oct 2007 22:36:12 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I personally think having a kid @ 17 is a bit young, by at least a year (closer to 2 tbh).
I'm 20 and have yet to allow any girl I've been with get pregnant. Of course, I'm also the kind of person who wants to be financially prepared before the fact.

Anyway, hope all goes well for you and that you don't end up breaking up with her (be it her decision or your's), for your kid's sake.

Just a small bit of advice: don't drink heavily (eg: don't get drunk) or do drugs for that matter (before having a kid on both of these is one thing, afterward can mess the kid up down the line), treat the kid right (not really spoiled, not abused) and the kid will turn out to be an alright person when they grow up (not to mention won't hate you).

Just my opinions, thought I'd share since they seem to be fairly relevant.
