trooprm02 wrote on Fri, 09 November 2007 15:32Ghostshaw wrote on Fri, 09 November 2007 03:19The newest *cheat name removed*has a panic button which removes all trace of cheat name removed(except skins and objects modifications obviously).

-Ghost-

How recent was this? If the server has biatch, obvisouly no dmg mod's, im pretty sure with biatch a SS will do it. I forgot how it all works out tho.

edit:the new RGH, doesnt bypass RG, and you can't turn it off (as far as I know), in a biatch'd server, no dmg mods, and it will pickup most of the cheats they trying to use anyway. Also, no GUI=hard to use. If they try to use a older version you can turn off, renguard will automatically block them from their network, and if they load up w/o renguard, biatch can detect it. Last time I checked, that's how it all worked out, meaning the only working thing was the aimbot, and you would still get the top left corner *cheat name removed*splash, so SS would work. I was also told 0x90 would be busy for a while and wouldn't release/help people out for a while, but I never heard about this new version.

You do realise that what you've just said would mean that when you had your 1v1 against stonecold and where he got cought using *cheat name removed*because of the screenshots he took... He was actually telling the truth because there hasn't been an update for *cheat name removed*in like 4months. I believe your 1v1 was in a CW server so no dmg mods and it would have had biatch installed? So he wouldn't have been able to turn off *cheat name removed*in the screenshots.

So you can admit that you're wrong or you can admin that stone wasn't cheating and he did in fact press home/insert by acciedent in them screenshots.

Before you start bitching at me for going off topic, this is my topic and i'll go off topic if I wish.