Yes that is true however the current iphone is behind already in several technologies so the next version of this will help it to catch up unless they are sensible and add more to the next iphone to stay ahead of the competition. Either way it's easily the sexiest phone on the market and if you just want a good looking phone you can't really do much better. I can also argue that you really don't need any of the shit on phones as the cameras for example are ALWAYS shit. I wouldn't pay that much for something pretty on principle but perhaps he has more money to spend.

Well, I dare to say that my HTC TyTn II is either very close to my normal digicam, or even that it beats it.

Only thing it lacks is flash, but somehow it is still able to make nice pictures in dark areas.
