Actually, it really depends on what you are accustomed too.

I don't actually mind playing FPS games with controllers or joysticks, but I simply can't use trackball mice.

However a friend of mine had a trackball mice for a few years and it recently died due to static electricity. Anyway, he used it for everything, including some FPS games like Battlefield.

I tried it... and I just didn't like the feel of it.

I also know of one other person who plays Renegade with a trackball.
