TBH most of the ISO's I would want to compress already contain compressed data, hence they don't compress very well. It really depends on the content of the disk image.

And just splitting it up into lots of smaller files does not exactly help him to upload it, as he still has to upload ALL of those smaller files.