Subject: Re: installing BrenBot
Posted by Ethenal on Mon, 03 Mar 2008 22:14:46 GMT

wittebolx wrote on Mon, 03 March 2008 14:30danpaul88 wrote on Fri, 29 February 2008 22:24It looks like your trying to run BRenBot with a corrupted database, as you can see in the screenshot it can't find a lot of the tables it expects to be there. I would suggest renaming brenbot.dat to brenbot2.dat and then loading the bot, it will create a new clean database file and you have the option of manually importing the old banlist into the new database then.

did that but now it doesnt do anything, and the message in the window goes away to fast only 2 or 3 lines of txt, something with blackhand studios..and then its gone - nothing happens

Run it from the command prompt. You'll have to manually change directories to the place the bot is located, but you'll be able to read the error message.