nikki6ixx I've been saying that also stop buying their games and maybe they will come out with something that will please us.

Well they're definitely at least trying to please their fans, so they get a gold star for that.

They are not trying to please the fans whatsoever if they did they would not keep a game secret up to the point where it was almost done and they were not going to change anything, lately EA has been doing that a lot they keep a game secret allowing no fan feedback and then just say pretty much when they announce it "If you don't like it too bad we're not changing anything!".

Final Statement EA SUCKS!
