@Spoony Those comments might bother me if you were of any importance but to defend my opinion:

they're a company, of course they want to make money, they want to release games a lot of people will like so a lot of people will buy them.

Some companies care about quality assurance, I support those companies out the ass. IE VALVe and Activision.

that > you, since you think you're entitled to their games for free, no matter how much they spent actually producing the damn things.

I'm looking through my post and see nothing mentioned about me being entitled to anything from those people. I hurt them intentionally the same way a person would beat the crap out of someone with a steel bar. It's not because I think I am entitled, its because I want them to die.

There are a crap load of OBLV releases out there and the reason they're EA games is not because I'm a fan.
