okiedokie... well, I don't pretend to be some kind of community god or something, but at least my efforts are positive... let me quote you word for word about your "efforts"

Quote:I hurt them intentionally the same way a person would beat the crap out of someone with a steel bar. It's not because I think I am entitled, its because I want them to die.

Oblivion165 wrote on Sun, 20 April 2008 02:57I'm involved in ways that would hurt your little mind. k... you complain about products you steal, and apparently I'm the one with the "little mind"? dude, stop humiliating yourself

Oblivion165 wrote on Sun, 20 April 2008 02:57Your analogy was flawed and challenged, it got you no where and was far from anything critical.

It wasn't flawed at all. If it was, you'd be able to point out the flaws, and you clearly can't. Go pick up your welfare check from EA, you scrub.

Oblivion165 wrote on Sun, 20 April 2008 02:57(Seems like you had some typos there)

...did I? oh, the humanity. I don't see any though? since you bring this up, let me correct a few of yours:

"affect" is a verb, the word you want is "effect"

"no where" is one word, not two

"EA games if far behind the standard of excellence." there's no 'f' in 'is'

"vamp" isn't a word in the context you're trying to use it, so there's no hyphen in "revamp"

"wont" isn't correct in the context you're trying to use it

Oblivion165 wrote on Sun, 20 April 2008 02:57EA

What do they want? Consumers to buy their mods.

What do they do to achieve it? Make mods they think will sell.

Oblivion165

What do you want? To marginalize the profit on all sales.

What do you do to achieve it? Usenet and Torrents.

Should I add one of your > < comparisons now?

sure... EA is still > you, by a long, long way.

You're just some shit-for-brains wannabe-anarchist who thinks he has the right to actively harm a company just because you don't like their products... seriously, go get a job and a social life.
